“Wildfire Awareness Week” declared in California

CAL FIRE stresses need for Californians to be ready for wildfire now

Sacramento – After a destructive fire season in 2015, conditions in California are already drying out prompting Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr. to declare May 1-7, 2016 as “Wildfire Awareness Week.” During Wildfire Awareness Week, CAL FIRE is stressing the critical role all Californians play in preparing for fire season now.

“The rain we received this winter and spring has been great, but with over 29 million dead trees due to the drought and bark beetle, our fire conditions still remain elevated,” said Chief Ken Pimlott, CAL FIRE director. “While our firefighters are preparing for what could be another busy fire season, this week is an important reminder that all Californians must do their part and be ready.”

Despite the rain over the winter, CAL FIRE has already responded to nearly 700 wildfires since the beginning of the year. With wildfires on the rise, CAL FIRE is reminding all Californians during “Wildfire Awareness Week”, that when it comes to wildfires, remember “Ready, Set, Go!” Being Ready for a wildfire starts by maintaining 100 feet of Defensible Space and hardening homes with fire resistant building materials. During this drought CAL FIRE is highly recommending residents landscape their yards with drought tolerant and fire resistant plants. Being Set includes having an evacuation plan and an emergency supply kit. Lastly, when a wildfire strikes, residents are urged to Go! and evacuate early.

CAL FIRE is also urging all Californians during Wildfire Awareness Week to learn the steps to prevent sparking a wildfire. Over 90 percent of the wildfires in California are sparked by the activity of people, so “One Less Spark, means One Less Wildfire.” It’s everyone’s responsibility to be fire safe outdoors and prevent sparking a wildfire.
