On February 1-2, the JDSF Advisory Group (JAG) and CAL FIRE will be holding a Science Stakeholder Workshop on the University of California, Berkeley, campus. Members of the public are welcome to attend the workshop. Attendance is free, but you are asked to register if you plan to attend so that we can make sure that there is room for every one and so that you can order and pay for optional meals. The Workshop and registration are being coordinated through UC Cooperative Extension at the following website: <http://groups.ucanr.org/JDSFMeetings/> Information on the location of the Workshop may be found on this website. Please note that while the public is welcome to attend the workshop, the agenda does not include any specific public participation opportunities, due to its focus on transferring information from the scientists to the JAG members.

The purpose of this workshop is to provide JAG with broad perspectives that will enable them to better understand opportunities and directions for research and demonstration on the Forest, and how to best integrate landscape-scale forest structural allocations in support of these opportunities. JAG has solicited input from a group of applied scientists representing specific areas of scientific expertise, who as a group can provide them with an interdisciplinary perspective.

Available in a separate document is a briefing paper that provides more information, including the list of anticipated participating scientists and the agenda.
